

More people today rent and lease their homes than ever before. Property management is not just the daily upkeep, marketing and communications demanded in this ever-changing social landscape.

Even when your tenants are in your close proximity you believe you can communicate via snail mail, which has almost halted, to email, which everyone believes is the direct means of informing and maintaining strong communications. Both have virtually fallen by the wayside! Just look at your own daily or now, weekly usage of communications.

Today it is the dominance of the Smartphone which has superseded the pen and paper to now be the ubiquitous communication tool. No one leaves home without their Smartphone and we are continually checking for information.

Via PROXCOMM Property Management proprietary proximity-based communications you are able to connect right to their Smartphones or any Bluetooth enabled device of your residents. The coverage of the whole building and all apartments/lofts is totally achievable by small proximity beacons placement which transmits up to a 300-foot radius. Coming and going you will always be notifying them with information regarding the property. Even the people who pass by the facility can be attracted to your property with marketing information received on their Smartphones. None of their personal information is available to you, it is just a notification transmission.

The PROXCOMM Property Management mobile app is simple and designed with simplicity in mind and is secure for all parties.

Never has there been such a direct proximity capability to maintain a communications flow for normal property management information, reminders, special events, emergencies and tenants to directly connect with your property management company.
